Overview

Cláudio Rodrigues Gomes focuses his practice on labor litigation, transactions, and dispute resolution. He represents clients from several industries, including the environmental sector, software/technology, healthcare, public sector employment, and social security.

Cláudio's main responsibilities are advising companies regarding restructuring (with or without collective dismissal, and with or without job position elimination), dismissals, and representing clients before labor inspection and courts.

Cláudio has a background in team coordination and client management. He also has experience working directly with clients, having integrated a secondment team at a company dedicated to urban waste management. Recently, he has developed a close connection with public hospitals, providing support to both human resources and legal officers.
