Overview

Nicholas Lansdown represents employers of all sizes in labor and employment law matters.

Before joining Littler, Nick operated as a sole proprietor, exclusively focusing his practice on labor and employment issues. Nick advised, negotiated, and litigated several legal matters under the California Labor Code and the Department of Fair Housing regulations. He also advised and counseled employers seeking to understand California's ever-changing employment law landscape.

While in law school, Nick served as the student body president, senior articles editor for the Hastings Business Law Journal, and president of the Student Veteran Organization. He also clerked in the San Francisco District Attorney's Office, helping to prosecute felony crimes.
